CASE

Tise turned second-hand shopping into a strategic asset

Tise built a social marketplace that made second-hand fashion attractive, accessible and engaging.

NOK210.5M
2025 REVENUE

+10.4%
REVENUE GROWTH IN 2025

2025
ACQUIRED BY EBAY

THE OPPORTUNITY

Making second-hand shopping mainstream

Tise recognised that consumers would embrace resale for more than sustainability alone.

Fashion, affordability and social discovery made second-hand shopping desirable, while the digital platform made buying and selling convenient.

2.5 M+
REGISTERED USERS

6.5 M
ITEMS SOLD

150 K
DAILY ACTIVE USERS

CIRCULAR MODEL

Keeping fashion in use for longer

Tise makes circular consumption work by connecting people who want to sell pre-owned items with people who want to discover and buy them.

Products can find new owners and be listed again, extending their useful life.

BANKABILITY INDICATORS

Strategic value creates an exit before profitability is proven

Tise illustrates how an investor can create value by backing a business that changes consumer behaviour, builds a scalable platform and becomes strategically relevant to a larger player.

01 Proven consumer adoption

02 Marketplace network effects

03 Proven strategic exit