A small reused segment is growing into a structural market

A defining moment when Movement acquired a large volume of office furniture from a large consulting firm during a relocation. With only a few weeks to clear the premises, Svein Moen (founder of Movement) quickly photographed and listed the furniture online, then invited customers to showroom sales.

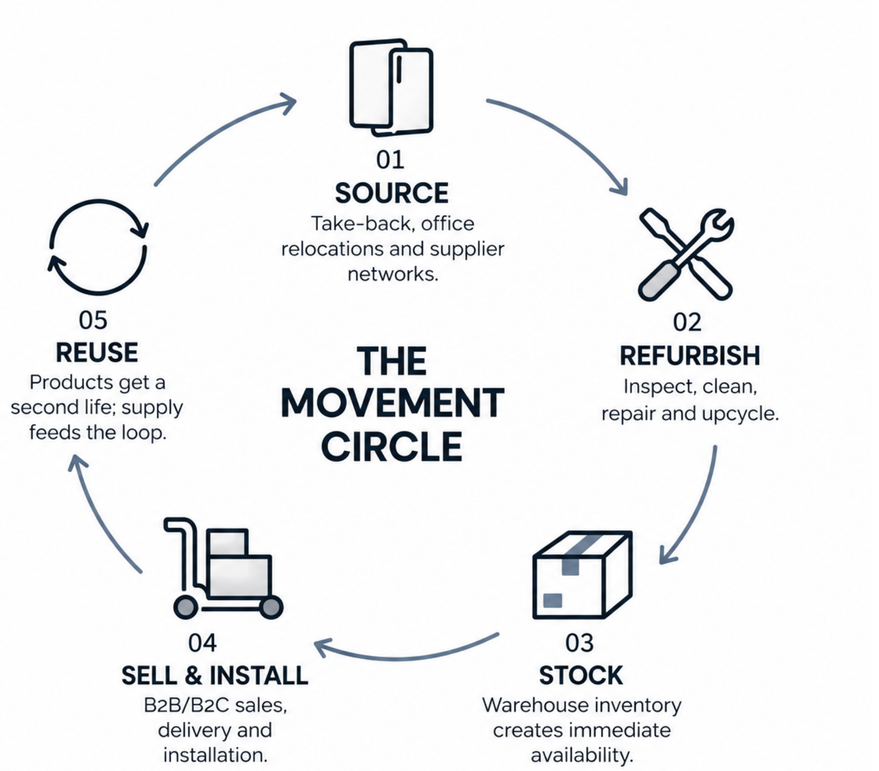

The project proved there was both a strong supply of high-quality used furniture and genuine customer demand.

37,000 tonnes of functional and usable office furniture are discarded annually in Norway

Value is created at every step of the reuse loop

Movement turns fragmented supply and demand for used furniture into a professional, repeatable B2B service.

VALUE CREATED AT EACH STEP

Lower procurement cost
Used assets can be acquired below new-furniture pricing.

Operational convenience
Sourcing, refurbishment, delivery and installation in one flow

Quality assurance
Professional inspection removes the traditional second-hand barrier

Faster delivery
Ready inventory avoids long manufacturing and import lead times.

Circular impact
Reuse extends product life and reduces procurement-related emissions.

WHAT CHANGED WITH INVESTMENTS?

The investment did not need to prove that reuse could work. It aimed to turn a proven, profitable business into a more professional and scalable operating platform.

WHY IT WORKS

When reuse beats new

Movement has built the infrastructure to make reused office furniture faster, more flexible and more convenient to buy than traditional alternatives.

Its advantage lies not in resale alone, but in combining reliable supply, refurbishment, ready-to-deliver inventory and an integrated customer offering.

01 — ACCESS TO SUPPLY

A structural source of low-cost inventory

Movement sources furniture from office relocations and other supply streams, acquiring valuable products at low cost. This creates room for attractive margins while keeping procurement costs down

02 — REFURBISHMENT AT SCALE

Turning used furniture into sellable products

Cleaning, repair, refurbishment and quality control create consistent products and reduce the barriers traditionally associated with buying second-hand.

03 — READY-TO-DELIVER INVENTORY

Faster and more flexible than new

With inventory already in the warehouse, Movement can deliver in 1–4 days, compared with 8–16 weeks for new furniture. This creates a meaningful customer benefit beyond price and sustainability.

04 — INTEGRATED CIRCULAR INFRASTRUCTURE

A system that is difficult to replicate

Warehousing, logistics, installation, take-back, project planning and digital infrastructure are integrated into one offering. Scale therefore strengthens the operating model and raises the barrier to entry.

THE CIRCULAR ADVANTAGE

By acquiring valuable furniture at low cost and restoring it for resale, Movement creates a structural margin opportunity while offering customers lower procurement costs and shorter lead times.

THE INVESTOR TAKEAWAY

What Makes a Circular Business Scalable?

01 LOOK FOR PROVEN DEMAND

Movement built a commercially viable reuse model long before circularity became a mainstream investment theme. Ignite invested after the company had demonstrated profitability and customer demand.

02 INVEST IN THE OPERATING SYSTEM

The transition from founder-led resale to a more scalable platform required professional management, better technology, improved warehouse processes and a stronger commercial channel.

03 LOOK FOR ECONOMICS THAT SCALE

A scalable circular business must do more than increase revenue. It must convert additional volume into sustainable profitability and cash generation.

THE TAKEAWAY

Capital creates value when it builds the organisation and infrastructure needed to scale a business model that already works.

"Movement combines a proven, profitable model with strong structural tailwinds. The team has built a scalable business, and a good example of circularity being a strong business case, not just an ambition."

Magnus Baumann
Managing Partner and CIO, Ignite Capital

"Our job is to make reuse the obvious first choice for every business furnishing a workplace."

COMPETITIVE ADVANTAGE

Movement is the clear market leader in Norway, with scale, sourcing and logistics that are hard to replicate.

1. PROVEN PROFITABILITY AND DEMAND

Movement has been EBITDA-positive since 2004 and reached NOK 75m in revenue in 2025. Ignite invested in an established, profitable business with demonstrated customer demand.

2. SCALABLE ECONOMICS

Revenue grew from NOK 40m in 2021 to NOK 75m in 2025. With an average gross margin of 65–70%, the model shows potential to scale profitably as professionalisation and operational improvements support further growth.

3. INTEGRATED INFRASTRUCTURE CREATES A COMPETITIVE EDGE

By combining sourcing, refurbishment, warehousing, logistics, delivery and installation, Movement has built an operating platform that is difficult to replicate and makes reuse convenient for business customers.
